The True Cause of it.

Cincinnati News-Journal: Both Democrats and Republicans expected the bulk of the Democratic vote to lie in the large cities, where the liquor interests were largest and where the German vote was largest. Instead of that it has fallen off in the cities and grown in the country, where it was least expected. Both were agreed in expecting the Republicans to hold their own in the iron districts and especially in Lawrence county. The result is a surprise to one, a disappointment to the other. The liquor men contributed to the result, the Germans cast many a Democratic vote, the woolgrowing districts and the grapegrowing districts helped the cause; but none of these nor all combined accounts for the size of it or the locality of it, until we come to see that personal liberty, and of the least possible government, affected the people in large numbers throughout the entire state. Such was our view of the canvass before the election and we decline to dwarf it to any narrow idea. It was our steady policy to make it a square fight between the Democratic and Republican ideas of government and the two theories and the two practical systems of government. With this view, we find the able and disinterested Colonel McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, accords in giving his own conclusions as to the causes of the result.

Now that the Republicans have quit twaddling about Judge Hoadly's mistakes, and now that none is any longer interested in representing him as a narrow attorney for a single interest, our leaders will remember that, far from dwarfing the cause of Democracy by any narrow view, from first to last he steadily put the contest upon its true ground and upon its broadest ground. He steadily, from first to last, drew accurately the contrast between Jeffersonian Democracy and that Jeffersonian copying old world ideas and systems which is Republicanism. There the battle was fought and won and it is every honest citizen's triumph, from the palace to the hovel, whether every honest citizen will see it or not.

How Pennsylvania was Left.

In 1779, on the 22nd of September, the House of Representatives passed a bill authorizing the President to appoint three Commissioners to select the most eligible situation on the banks of the Susquehanna river, in the State of Pennsylvania, for the permanent seat of Government of the United States. The vote was 31 yeas, 17 nays. One the same day the bill was sent to the Senate, which body, by a vote of 11 to 7, struck out the "convenient place on the banks of the Susquehanna." Then a motion to insert "the river Potomac" was lost; another amendment, inserting "the counties of Philadelphia, Chester and Bucks in the State of Pennsylvania" was a tie, 9 to 9, and John Adams cast his vote to Pennsylvania, and thus amended the bill went back to the House, where, after a little debate, the Senate amendment was concurred in and one amendment added by Madison, providing that the operation of the laws of Pennsylvania in the district ceded should not be affected until otherwise provided by law. When the bill went back to the Senate for its concurrence in this amendment, the influence of Washington and Jefferson, who favored the Potomac site, was sufficient to have the whole subject laid over to the next session of Congress, and Pennsylvania was left. But then, Pennsylvania holds no grudge against Madison for his fatal resolution, because she doesn't need the capital. She has all the oil wells in the world, and there isn't room in one State for Bradford and Washington.

"A God-Send."

The children of Israel were once fed by manna, sent from Heaven. This was an undoubted case of "God-send." The amelioration of human ills and ailments has been often undertaken, and as often failed. Ely's Cream Balm, however, "has been weighed in the balance and not found wanting." It is a sovereign, speedy, certain, and pleasant cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head. Thousands of persons have attested this fact. "Ely's Cream Balm is a God-send," wrote Mrs. M. A. Jackson, of Portsmouth, N. H., on May 23, 1882. "I had Catarrh for three years, had tried nearly all remedies, but to no purpose. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed quite freely, and I thought the sores in it would never heal. Your Balm has cured me." This preparation is not a liquid or a snuff, and is easily applied. Can you, reader, afford to experiment with injurious snuffs and injections when a pleasant and certain cure is at hand? 2t

Men Who Throw Light on the Labor Question.

Some day the senate committee on labor will have Russell Sage before it in the witness box, and the examination will lead off with:

"Let's see—Mr. Sage, you were the poor son of a poor farmer up in New Hampshire?"

"I was."

"Had to study your books by the light of a corn-cob fire?"

"I did."

"Went barefoot in winter and ragged in summer, and up to your eighteenth year you never had fifty cents to your name?"

"Correct, sir."

"At the age of 19 you began to speculate? You traded a $3 watch for a $30 colt, and in course of time worked up the colt into fifty sheep pelts and a bridled steer?"

"Eactly, sir."

"And you are now worth millions?"

"Yes, a few."

"All made by selling tinware from a peddler's wagon, and removing corns and warts at 10 cents a remove?"

"Every dollar."

"That will do, Mr. Sage. You and Mr. Gould and the other boys have thrown a heap of light on this labor question and our gratitude is unbounded."

A fact worth knowing and one that should be added to the ugly girl paper, of the many things for cleaning and beautifying the complexion, none are so pleasant, harmless and effectual as Pacific Liver Pills. By using these you can obtain a beautiful complexion without using any of the harmful cosmetics. o18-1m

Nervous debility, indicated by loss of memory, universal lassitude, constant fatigue, vivid dreaming, unnatural excitations, fits of dizziness, etc., is quickly cured by using Dr. Guyot's Yellow Root and Sarsaparilla. This remedy purifies the blood, strengthens the weak portions of the body, quiets the nerves, produces dreamless slumber, and is the only remedy that permanently cures the many distressful ailments resulting from nervous debility. 2t

The Game Law.

At the request of many readers we give the following summary of the game law of Ohio as passed by the Legislature last winter:

Persons may "catch or kill"—

Quail and prairie chickens between November 1st and November 30th.

Wild turkey between October 31st and January 15th.

Ruffed grouse, pheasant or blue winged teal between August 31st, and January 1st.

Mallard wood duck or any other wild duck between August 31st and April 1st.

Woodcock between July 31 and January 1st.

It is unlawful to trap or snare quail at any time.

It is unlawful to kill any deer before October 15th, 1885.

The Boston Post remarks that "it is a waste of time to warn American mothers against selling their daughters to titled foreigners. They know that there is but one chance in a hundred for a happy married life, but they think the empty honor of a title worth the risk. The excessive gallantry of the fool-killer is responsible for much evil." Is it a fact that American mothers sell their daughters to titled foreigners? Strictly speaking, probably not, but that about the transaction which makes it appear like selling. And when fairly analyzed there is associated with such marriages some things compared with which Mormon polygamists are not required to blush.

The man who was kicked out of a seaside resort was caught by the under toe.

The question is: Can a girl who doesn't use powder make her hair bang?

"When does a man become a scamp?" "When he hems and haws." "No." "When he threads his way." "No." "When he rips and tears." "No." "Give it up." "Never, if he can help it."

"Pa," said a little boy, "a horse is worth a good deal more, isn't it, after it's broke?" "Yes, my son. Why do ask such a question?" "Because I broke the new rocking horse you gave me this morning."

"Let us play we are married," said little Edith, "and I will bring my dolly and say: 'See baby, papa.'" "Yes," replied Johnny, "and I will say: 'Don't bother me now. I want to look through the paper.'"

"That a blessing it is," says Pat, slightly muddled, "that night never comes on 'till late in the day, when a man is all tired out, and he couldn't work no more, anyhow, at all, at all, not even if it was morning."

"Solid comfort!" can be realized by those suffering from all forms of scrofula if they will take Hood's Sarsaparilla and be cured.

Gone Never to Return.

Gardiner, Me.—Mr. Daniel Gray, a prominent lumber merchant writes that his wife had severe rheumatic pains; so severe as to render her unable to sleep. From the first application of the famous German Remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, she experienced unspeakable relief, and in two hours the pain had entirely gone.

Somebody remarked that pale Mrs. Brown, of Chicago, had one foot in the grave. Smith said that she would still be safe if she lived at home; for she couldn't get the other foot in unless she went out of the state.

A big Yankee from Maine, on paying his bill in a London restaurant, was told that the sum put down didn't include the waiter. "Wal," he roared, "I didn't eat any waiter; did I?" He looked as if he could, though; and there was no further discussion.

There is honesty and patience in hackmen, Niagara Falls correspondents to the contrary. At a railroad station Tuesday, the usual question "Have a hack?" accosted a traveler. "Yes, if it rains," was the laconic answer. "Wal, no; it don't rain," said the hackman, disappointedly turning away. "It only drizzles."

A Lower Berth.

"It would take a day in the recital, and then fill a big book to tell of the incidents that enter into the daily life of a Pullman car," said J. W. Smitley, the resident superintendent of the company in Philadelphia, to a Press reporter, "and then it would take another and a larger book to contain what hasn't been told." Are any of these stories true of fat men telling horrible tales about crashing through upper berths in order to secure lower berths? was asked.

"It is true that factious heavy weights tell the stories in the hearing of timid persons," was the reply, "and it is equally untrue that any upper berth ever breaks down. A well-known New York journalist who tips the beam at 300—suppose you know him—can be credited with being the originator of that yarn. He loves a joke, and as he is known to almost every palace car porter in the country manages to carry out the sell very successfully when necessary. In case the gentleman reaches the train late and finds the lower berths occupied, he hunts around until he finds a nervous traveler in a place where he would like to be himself. Then he calls the colored porter and asks him if he has heard any further news of the Rev. Mr. Smith. The porter, who is posted, replies, 'You mean de po' gentleman what you mashed dat night you fell froo de berth?'"

"Yes," replies the ponderous traveler. "I've often thought of that poor man, Jim. I think I broke one of his ribs and one of his arms, didn't I?"

"Two ribs and bote arms, sah," replies Jim solemnly.

"And it was somewhere about this part of the car, wasn't it, Jim?" asks the heavy man loudly.

"No, sah," says the porter, "you're thinkin' ob de two orphans what you fell on dat night when we was near Buf. falo. If you remember, sah, one of de boys died, and he odder had his eye squashed out. De preacher, sah, was in de upper end of de car. He wouldn't get outen de lower berth, sah."

"Unfortunate fellow," sighs the passenger, "and I wasn't as heavy by fifty pounds as I am now, either."

By this time you can depend the nervous traveler is getting his pantaloons on. Usually he peeps out, and when he sees the mountain of flesh that is talking, he is more than willing to take the upper berth than to run the risk of being crushed to death in the middle of the night. It is a pretty good scheme, and generally works to the fat man's satisfaction. As soon as the other fellow finds that a joke has been played upon him, he forms the joker's acquaintance, and, in almost every instance that I've heard, the friendship so strangely made is lasting, because the fat man is one of those jolly good fellows that nobody could get angry at for more than ten minutes. There are lots of other incidents that if strung together, might make a good story, but, as life is short and time precious, I think we had better leave the best ones for another day.

"Yes," said Mrs. Brownsmith, "I want a good girl, and possibly you might do; but have you had any experience?" "Experience, is it?" replied the damsel, resting her hands on her hips and tossing her head in the air. "Experience, is it?" Faith, and haven't I been in no less than twenty families during the last month?"

1831 THE CULTIVATOR AND 1884 Country Gentleman

THE BEST OF THE AGRICULTURAL WEEKLIES

The Country Gentleman is the Leading Journal of American Agriculture. In amount and practical value of contents, in extent and ability of Correspondence, in quality of paper and style of publication, it occupies the FIRST RANK. It is believed to have no superior in either of the three chief divisions of Farm Crops and Processes, Horticulture & Fruit-Growing, Live Stock and Dairying;

while also includes all minor departments of rural interest, such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, Bee-keeping, Greenhouse and Grapery, Veterinary, Farm Questions and Answers, Fireside Reading, Domestic Economy, and a summary of the News of the Week. Its Market Reports are unusually complete, and much attention is paid to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell. It is liberally illustrated, and is intended to supply, in a continually increasing degree, and in the best sense of the term.

LIVE AGRICULTURAL NEWSPAPER.

Although the Country Gentleman has been GREATLY ENLARGED by increasing its size from 16 to 20 pages weekly, the terms continue as heretofore, and are paid strictly in advance: One Copy, one year $2.50; Four Copies, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; Ten Copies, $30, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

All New Subscribers for 1884, paying in advance now, will receive the Paper Weekly, from receipt of remittance to January 1st, 1884, without Charge.

Specimen Copies Free. Address: LUTHER TUCKER & SON, Publishers, ALBANY, N. Y.
